Camille, 17, is from Orono, MN, and is entering her Senior year at Orono High School. She plans to play college golf on the Division 1 level, while continuing her studies in art and design. She will receive $2000.

Eleanor, 17, from Cincinnati, OH, is a committed and dedicated golfer with interests in STEM fields, and will receive $500.

Katherine, 17, from Geneva, IL, plans to play college golf while majoring in a STEM subject, preferably engineering, and will receive $500.

"Each of these recipients described life lessons learned on the golf course that support their academic achievements and their desire to be of service to their communities," stated one of the Scholarship committee members.

Dr. Garrity spent 34 years at the University of Colorado School of Medicine, and was particularly impactful in supporting student-led programs on leadership, community service, and social determinants of health.

She was a long-time supporter and volunteer with Pepsi Little People's, winning the 2017 Little People's Volunteer of the Year Award. She passed away in December of 2018 after a long battle with cancer.
